The Daily Courant.

Monday, June 29. 1719.

From the Harlem Courant, dated July 4.

Vienna, June 21.

ON the 19th Instant their Imperial Majesties returned from Laxemburg to the Favorita, where they are to reside during the Summer Season, the rest of the Court is since likewise arrived. It is said the Emperour will moderate as much as possible the Solemnities of the Marriage of the Electoral Prince of Saxony, and advise the Electoral Court to forbear unnecessary Expences upon that Account in Saxony: His Highness the said Prince is to be lodged here in the Imperial Palace in the Aparments which were the Empress Mother's, to which will be joined some other Apartments now belonging to the Court of the young Archdutchesses. The Solemnization of the Marriage will be performed in the Cathedral of St Stephen, and the Rejoicings at Court are to last 3 Days. The Russian Agent M. Bussy, who upon new Evidence of his having again intermeddled in the Czar's Affairs had been ordered a second time to depart the Imperial Dominions, continues here upon the Representations made by his Creditors, that they might be satisfied before he be permitted to go away, and Commissaries have been appointed to examine his Affairs. The great Number of Strangers that come to this City, proving burthensom to the Inhabitants by reason of their Poverty, an Office will be set up to examine all Passengers. We have as yet no Advice from the Frontiers of Turkey relating to the Exchange of the Ambassadours of the two Empires, which was to be performed on the 15th Instant. We hear the Sultan [illegible] the Reports that have been spread, as if he was wavering in performing his Engagements with the Emperour, and that he declares by it willing to give all manner of Proofs of his sincere Intentions: The mutinous Janizaries at Widin, Nissa, and other Frontier Places, are not yet appeased.

From the Hague Courant, dated July 3.

Stockholm, June 14. On the 2d Instant Baron Lilieestet set out for Aland, where he is since arrived. On the 7th came hither from Ostrogothia the Russian Brigadier Le Fort, accompanied by the young Count Gyllenborg, who has been the Czar's Prisoner [illegible] Field Marshal Count Renschield [illegible] Schonen, to command the Army there in the room of Count Gyllenstiern. On the 9th Count Dielke set out for Gottemburg, where he is to embark for Holland, to proceed from thence to Vienna. That Day Brigadier Le Fort, the Czar's Ambassadour, had Audience of the Queen. On the 10th the Queen, being dressed in Mourning, went to the Hall of the Assembly of the States. The Resolutions of the General Diet being read, the four Orders of the States took their respective Leaves of her Majesty after each other; upon which Count Cronhielm, President of the Chancellor's Office, made an eloquent Speech in her Majesty's Name to the whole Assembly, thanking them for their Zeal for the Welfare of the Kingdom, assuring them that her Majesty would contribute all that in her lies, not only to save the Kingdom from the Dangers with which it is threatned at present, but also to restore it to a flourishing Condition. After which the Oaths were administred to those Senators who had not taken them on the Coronation Day, and so the General Diet ended. On the 11th the Court went into Mourning again. On the 12th the Hereditary Prince of Hesse Cassel, General Ducker, and other General Officers went to Waxholm to view the Works which are raising along the Coasts and the Sides of the River of Stockholm, where Regular Forces and Militia have been posted, to oppose the Landing of the Enemy. The Queen has made a Promotion of Generals: Lieutenant General Hamilton is made General, and the Major Generals Palmquist and Stromfeld, Lieutenant-Generals. The Day of M. Neugebaur's Departure for Constantinople is not yet fixed. Baron Leyonstet has taken Possession of his Place in the Senate of the Kingdom, in the Quality of Senator.

From the Amst. Courant, dated July 4.

Copenhagen, June 27. Tho' it was reported here that the British Squadron was arrived in the Sound, we have learned since that there were only two Men of War of that Nation, the Captains of which were Yesterday in this City. The Letters from Norway, which came in Yesterday, are of too old a Date to give an Account of the King of Denmark's landing in that Kingdom. A good Number of our Prisoners came over from Sweden on the 25th Instant. Six Men of War of the Line lie in our Road, which are to reinforce our Squadron in the Baltick.

Hambourg, June 30. Letters from Stockholm of the 16th Instant advise, that the Queen of Sweden had ordered Count Reenschield to form a Camp on the Frontiers of Norway on the Side of Bahus, the Danes seeming to have a Design against that Place, tho' they feign to attack Elsburg and afterwards Gottemburg; and that accordingly some Regiments were on their March towards Bahus: But as the Swedish Regiments are much reduced by the Hardships of the last Campaign in Norway, they will not be able to make up 10000 Men, the main Force being intended for opposing the Czar's Designs against the Kingdom. Orders have been sent to Count Morner, Governour of Gottemburg, and to the Commandants of Bahus, Marstrand, Stromstat, to be upon their Guard, to take Care of the Passes, particularly of the Fort of Sonesburg, and to provide the Places under their Command with Necessaries. Upon this General Morner has sent up to Court a State of those Fortresses, and represented, that having ordered the Inhabitants of the Country to send in their Provisions, they remonstrated that they were themselves so destitute of every thing that many died of Want; that the late King, when he went upon the Expedition against Norway, having taken from them all their Horses, the Ground had remained untilled; all which the said General, upon Examination, had found to be true. The Senate however have resolved to compleat the Regiments at any rate, and to force People into the Service, so that it is feared the Country will become quite desolate. Those Difficulties are still augmented by the Divisions which reign between the several Orders of the Kingdom.

Hanover, June 30. Several Persons of Distinction who had followed his Britannick Majesty, our Sovereign, to Pyrmont, are returned hither, and the King himself is expected in the Evening at Herrenhausen. Yesterday at 6 in the Evening the Marquis de Senneterre, Ambassadour of France, arrived here.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated July 4.

Brussels, June 29. The Affair relating to the Supply for the Year 1718. was terminated on the 26th Instant, to the Satisfaction of the Government, the Nations having at length given their Consent to it, which they had refused several times. A Placard has been published for reuniting to the Demesnes all the Lands that have been alineated since the Reign of King Charles II of Spain.
